

Dao-Yi Chow

Dao-Yi is a superstar celebrity in denial. Having been in the entertainment and fashion world for over 15 years, Dao is a prominent figure in the circuit - regardless of his multi-faceted profession.

Having served as Creative Director for Sean John for almost a decade as well as a respected fashion designer for his two menswear lines, Public School and Black Apple, it's no wonder this man barely sleeps. Thankfully, his insomnia is helping to prove that Dao-Yi is not just another handsome gentleman in a nice tailored suit but the man is a musical genius.

Having done a serious stint as DJ during his college years at NYU, Dao found himself DJing at all the hottest parties in New York City in the mid to late 90s. Soon after, his credibility on the turntables made him a well sought-after DJ for someone who never considered himself to be one. Now, he's taking his hobby to the next level; having spun for such high profile events as Art Basel Miami Beach, Fashion's Night Out NY, Fashion Week and so much more. His array of musical selection is hard to pinpoint - from Depeche Mode to Jay Z and whatever falls in between - Dao doesn't just DJ but he sets the mood for the rest of the night, well past the bar's last call. In another words, Dao leaves a lasting impression that is hard to erase ... even if it's someone else DJing.
